

List of Contributors

Note 1: Japanese names are listed with surname first.

Note 2: Russian scholars commonly refer to the kandidat degree as a doctorate or PhD.

PAMI AALTO is Jean Monnet professor in the School of Management, University of Tampere, Finland. His work on Russian energy includes the edited volumes Russia's Energy Policy: National, Interregional and Global Dimensions (Edward Elgar 2011/12) and The EU – Russian Energy Dialogue: Europe's Future Energy Security (Ashgate 2007); in addition, he works on interdisciplinarity in international studies.

EDUARD BARYSHEV is a research assistant at the Institute for North East Asian Research, Shimane University. A specialist in the history of Russo-Japanese relations, he is the author of Nichiro dōmei no jidai, 1914-1917: 'Reigaitekina yūkō' no shinsō [The Epoch of Russo-Japanese Alliance, 1914–1917: The Truth About an 'Exceptional Friendship'] (Fukuoka, 2007).

KIKUTA HARUKA is a research fellow of the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science at the Slavic Research Center. Her recent publication is “A Master is Greater than a Father: Rearrangements of Traditions among Muslim Artisans in Soviet and Post-Soviet Uzbekistan,” Research in Economic Anthropology 29 (UK: JAI Press, Emerald, 2009), pp. 89–122.

YULIA MIKHAILOVA is a professor at the Faculty of International Studies, Hiroshima City University. Her publications include Japan and Russia. Three Centuries of Mutual Images (Folkestone: Global Oriental, 2008), “Intellectuals, Cartoons and Nationalism during the Russo-Japanese War,” in Mark W. MacWilliams, Japanese Visual Culture (M.R. Sharpe, 2008) and many other articles on Russian-Japanese relations.