

Guadalupe Correa-Cabrera (Schar School of Policy and Government, George Mason University USA/ President of Association for Borderlands Studies: 2017-)

<https://schar.gmu.edu/about/faculty-directory/guadalupe-correa-cabrera>

The title of my participation could be the following,

“Border in the Americas in the Era of Trump, Walls and Closed Borders”

This work will describe the current configuration of borders and migration patterns in the Americas in an era of increased border enforcement, extreme violence and expansion of different forms of organized crime. This paper will evaluate the current actions toward achieving closed borders in different parts of the region as well as the effect of such policies on U.S.-Mexico border relations, security and organized crime.